| Page 8 | Jeremy Jackrabbit lived in the desert and he loved the color green, |
| Page 9 | From his clothes, to his car, to the hat on his head, even lime was his favorite flavor of jelly bean! |
| Page 10 | In his hot desert home, through the town he would roam, searching for pretty flowers and shade, |
| Page 11 | Cause he liked to stay cool, play with friends after school, and sometimes he even sold lemonade, |
| Page 12 | A few times each year, the summer skies would tear, as the clouds above Jeremy turned gray, |
| Page 13 | And for hours on end, monsoons would pour on our friend, but the water it never would stay! |
| Page 14 | “How can we get some more” Jeremy asked at the store, as he purchased some green jelly beans, |
| Page 15 | “You should harvest the rain”, said the Lizard Lorraine, “I will explain what rainwater harvesting means!” |
| Page 16 | “When the summer rain falls you can capture it all, and then use it to feed plants round the year” |
| Page 17 | “And it’s easy to do for a rabbit like you, when you follow the directions you hear” |
| Page 18 | “I know of one technique, you can do with your beak, or a shovel” said the Roadrunner Raúl, |
| Page 19 | “You just dig a small ditch with a nice downward pitch, so the water can form a big pool” |
| Page 20 | “As the rain hits the ground, it will run all around, but will gather in the hole you have made |
| Page 21 | And long after the rain, the water will drain and the trees will grow leaves the color of jade” |
| Page 22 | “I have my own trick, to make water stick, as it lands on the top of my house” |
| Page 23 | It drains into a tank, to be used later or drank” said Jeremy’s friend Ramona the mouse |
| Page 24 | The plants in my yard, they find it quite hard, to live in the hot desert heat, |
| Page 25 | But by catching the rain, and not letting it drain, I can grow fruits in my garden to eat” |
| Page 26 | Without missing a beat Jeremy hopped down the street with his bag full of shovels and more, |
| Page 27 | He had bought his supplies and looked forward to try, all the things he had learned at the store, |
| Page 29 | He would hammer on gutters, one right after the other, so his roof runoff could be used later with ease, |
| Page 30 | Now everyone knows, when the desert sky blows, how to capture rain all the year through, |
| Page 31 | So make it a habit, be like Jeremy Jackrabbit, and practice rainwater harvesting too! |
